

I like the idea of a single registration. But as a photographer, registering one photograph for $35 is just not affordable and prohibitive for me to participate in this registration type.

I guess the only real use for this registration type will be for authors with a single manuscript, as I would be very surprised if a poet would submit a single poem, a musician submitting a single song or a photographer submitting a single photograph.

I would use this registration type if I could submit a collection of photographs on a single subject because most of my projects worthy of copyright registration are based on a theme of one kind or another.
